WELCOME

The Asian Lawyer[®] CHINA LAW & PRACTICE THE AMERICAN LAWYER LAW.COM

WELCOME

On behalf of Law.com International, publisher of The Asian Lawyer and China Law & Practice, I am delighted to welcome you to the 14th annual China Law & Practice Awards. Tonight, we celebrate the region's most competitive deals and recognize China's exceptional law firms and highflying lawyers.

We have partners from leading law firms operating in Asia, general counsel from the world's largest companies, and honored guests from across the legal industry all participating virtually to celebrate excellence in the region. The China Law & Practice Awards 2020 shines the light on those who were part of the most outstanding deals of the year and the firms that excelled in their practice areas. We are proud to honor the lawyers who continue to push the bar higher where quality and originality of legal advice is crucial for success.

Our U.S. and European readership have shown keen interest in the Asian legal markets. We will continue to publish an extended review of the awards in our magazines, giving the global legal community a close look at the leading firms in Asia, the dedication and achievements of the finest work across the continent, and what it takes to thrive in this fast-changing market.

Our most experienced and award-winning editorial team from across the globe analysed the entries, considered and debated each submission and drew up shortlists in each category. So thank you to everyone who submitted information about their work and spoke with us.

While we wish we could all celebrate together I give my congratulations to all finalists and winners.

The New Development Bank (NDB), now in its fifth year of operations, has become a fully-fledged multilateral development bank in terms of people, processes, platforms and products. In 2019, NDB approved 22 projects amounting to USD 7.2 billion, while cumulative project approvals crossed USD 15 billion. With the Bank's proposed COVID-19 pandemic-related assistance, incremental approvals in 2020 are likely to be above USD 10 billion. The COVID-19 related assistance is intended to enable the Bank's members to deal with immediate health impacts, as well as medium-term economic recovery challenges. In the coming decade, technology-led accelerated change will challenge the existing paradigm of the development finance business. The Bank is well positioned to leverage the emerging and untapped opportunities in smart infrastructure financing.
